Doctor visits during pregnancy

Why should I go to the doctor during pregnancy?

Prenatal care is health care for you and your baby during your pregnancy. You can get prenatal care with a doctor or nurse midwife.

During prenatal visits, your doctor or nurse midwife will answer your questions and check to make sure all is well with your pregnancy and your growing baby.

Schedule your first prenatal appointment as soon as you think you are pregnant. Your doctor or nurse midwife will tell you how often to schedule more prenatal appointments.

Talk to your doctor or nurse midwife about:

- Prenatal vitamins and eating healthy
- Exercise and healthy weight gain
- Getting enough sleep
- Your current health conditions and medications you are taking, or thinking of taking

Dental care during pregnancy

- Don't forget to continue regular dental care during pregnancy. If you need help finding a dentist, call the UCare Dental Connection at 1-855-648-1415 toll free, TTY 711.*

*UCare Dental Connection is not available to Individual & Family Plans and Individual & Family Plans with M Health Fairview.

 Get tips via text

Text BABY to 511411 or download the Text4babySM app on your cell phone to get helpful tips during pregnancy and through your baby's first year of life. Text4baby is a free service by Wellpass. (Message and data rates may apply, depending on your cell phone plan.)

Immunizations (shots)

Flu shots and other immunizations

- Getting a flu shot during pregnancy can help protect your new baby from getting the flu during the first six months of your baby's life.
- Ask your doctor or nurse midwife about getting a flu shot and other immunizations during pregnancy to help protect you and your baby.

When do you need prenatal care visits?

Your doctor or nurse midwife will talk with you about prenatal care and what to expect. Your visits may be different depending on you and your baby's health. Below, see how often many women with healthy pregnancies get prenatal care, and what happens during the visits.

Your doctor or midwife can recommend the right weight gain for you and your baby. Here are some healthy eating suggestions.

Fish

- Limit cooked fish and seafood to 8 – 12 ounces a week
- You can eat all types of tuna, but limit white (albacore) tuna to 6 ounces a week

Do not eat:

- Raw or smoked fish or seafood (labeled nova-style, lox, kippered, smoke or jerky), unless it's cooked
- Tilefish, shark, swordfish, king mackerel, northern pike, muskie, or larger, older walleye. They have high mercury levels and are not safe.
- Fish from contaminated lakes or rivers.
For a list of contaminated lakes and rivers, call the Minnesota Department of Health at 1-800-657-3908 toll free.

Foods to avoid

- Unpasteurized milk or juice
- Cold hot dogs and luncheon meats unless reheated until steaming hot

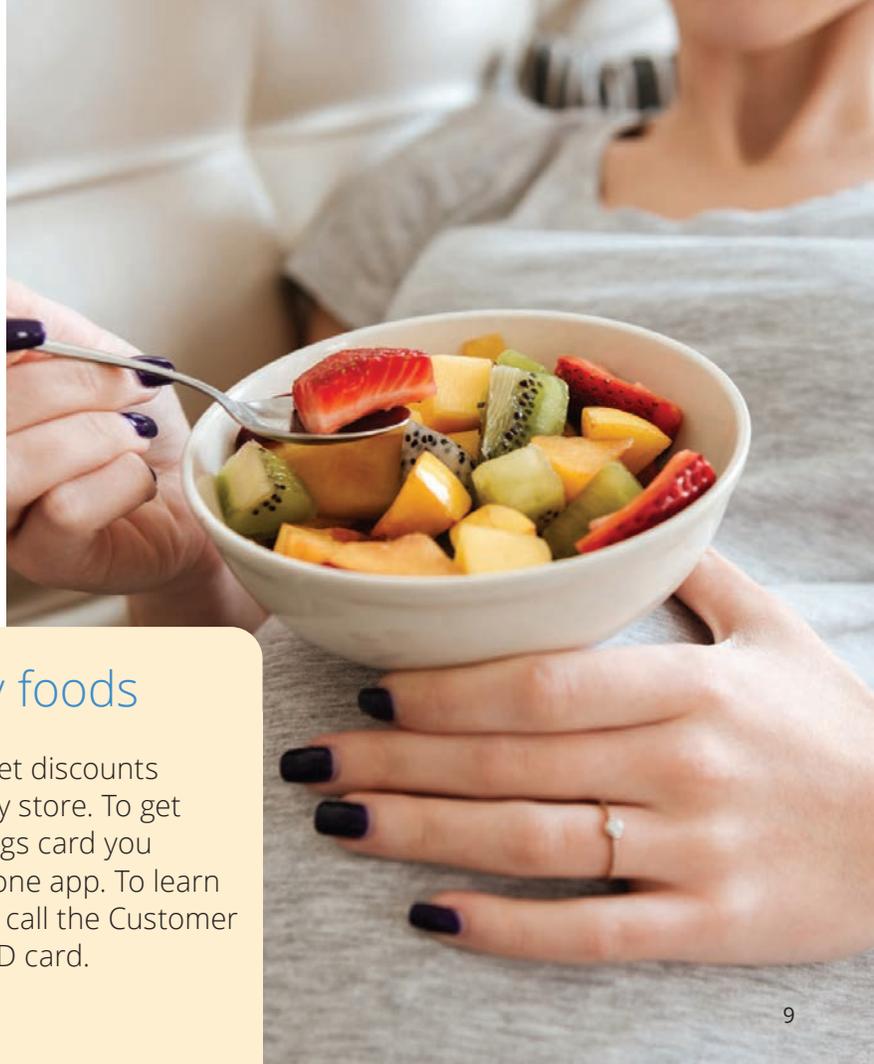

- Soft cheese, such as Feta, Brie, Camembert; also, blue-veined cheeses, queso blanco, queso fresco and Panela, unless it's labeled as made with pasteurized milk
- Refrigerated meat spreads or patés
- Saturated fats, added sugars and high sodium

For more information about safe eating during pregnancy, visit the Food and Drug Administration's (FDA) Food Safety for Moms-to-Be page.

Contact the Women, Infants, and Children (WIC) program for more information about healthy eating. WIC helps families with financial needs buy groceries, and provides breastfeeding support to new mothers. To learn more, call 1-800-942-4030 toll free. TTY: 711 or 1-800-627-3529 toll free.

Food safety

- Clean hands, cutting boards, countertops and utensils before and after preparing meals
- Keep raw meat, poultry and fish separate from other foods
- Cook foods completely
- Make sure that cold foods stay cold
- Check expiration dates
- Throw away hot or cold foods that are left at room temperature for more than two hours

Get discounts on healthy foods

Use the UCare Healthy Savings program to get discounts on healthy foods when you shop at the grocery store. To get started, go online to register the Healthy Savings card you received in the mail or download the smartphone app. To learn more, visit www.HealthySavings.com/UCare or call the Customer Service number on the back of your member ID card.

Help quitting tobacco, alcohol and drugs

UCare and your doctors can help

Quit smoking and vaping

When you smoke, your baby smokes, too. Smoking while you're pregnant can lead to serious health problems, such as early labor. Smoking around your child after birth can increase health problems, such as asthma and bronchitis. Each time you choose not to smoke or vape, you help your baby. Quitting is hard, but your baby's health is worth it.

Resources and incentives:

- UCare members have extra help. Call the UCare tobacco and nicotine quit line at 1-855-260-9713 toll free, TTY users call 711 toll free, 24 hours a day, 7 days a week.
- Earn a gift card when you complete a phone assessment with the quit line during your pregnancy. Limits apply.
- Order a free copy of a book to help you quit smoking (English or Spanish). Go to the back of this booklet to find the order form.

Avoid alcohol

When you drink, so does your baby. Even small amounts of alcohol can cause big problems for some babies. No amount of alcohol has been proven safe during pregnancy. It is important that you do not drink any alcohol until your baby stops breastfeeding. Ask your doctor for help quitting alcohol.

Don't use drugs, except prescribed medications

Drugs can always harm the person who uses them. But if you abuse drugs when you're pregnant, the drugs affect your baby. A baby is so small that any amount of drug becomes an overdose. If you use drugs, stop completely while you're pregnant and breastfeeding. Ask your doctor for help quitting drugs, and if your prescription drugs are safe to continue taking while pregnant.

Call the UCare 24/7 nurse line

Pregnancy and parenting can be wonderful and stressful. If you need help, nurses are available for you anytime — day or night.

Nurses at the UCare 24/7 nurse line can:

- Answer questions about your pregnancy that can't wait until your next doctor visit
- Discuss a medical concern
- Help you decide what to do if your baby is sick

Call the UCare 24/7 nurse line listed on page 28 of this book and on the back of your member ID card.

Why you want to avoid early delivery

Early delivery

You might start having contractions or other signs that your baby is coming too early before their due date. This is called pre-term labor. When a baby is born too early, he or she may:

- Be very sick
- Have trouble breathing, eating, staying warm, seeing or hearing
- Need to spend weeks or months in the hospital before coming home
- Need extra health care after coming home, possibly for months or years

Warning signs of pre-term labor

- Bloody or unusual discharge from your vagina
- Cramps that feel like your period
- Low, dull backache
- Contractions (tightening of your uterus)
- Leak or sudden gush of fluid from your vagina
- Sudden swelling or puffiness
- Pressure in your back, abdomen, pelvis or thighs (like the baby is pushing down)

What to do if you have any warning signs

Call your doctor or nurse midwife right away! Sometimes pre-term labor can be stopped so that the baby can keep growing inside you longer.

Need transportation?

It's very important for you and your baby to go to all of your health care appointments. If you don't have a ride, you may be eligible for transportation assistance.

Health Ride

If you are enrolled in UCare Families and Children (formerly PMAP), UCare Connect (SNBC) or UCare Connect + Medicare (HMO D-SNP), call Health Ride for a ride to your covered medical or dental appointment.*

Getting ready for baby

Prepare for your baby's birth

Prepare for childbirth and breastfeeding with the following services*:

Doula services

A doula is a trained professional who can meet with you to provide education and support during pregnancy, labor and birth, and during the first weeks after your baby is born.

If you would like to work with a doula:

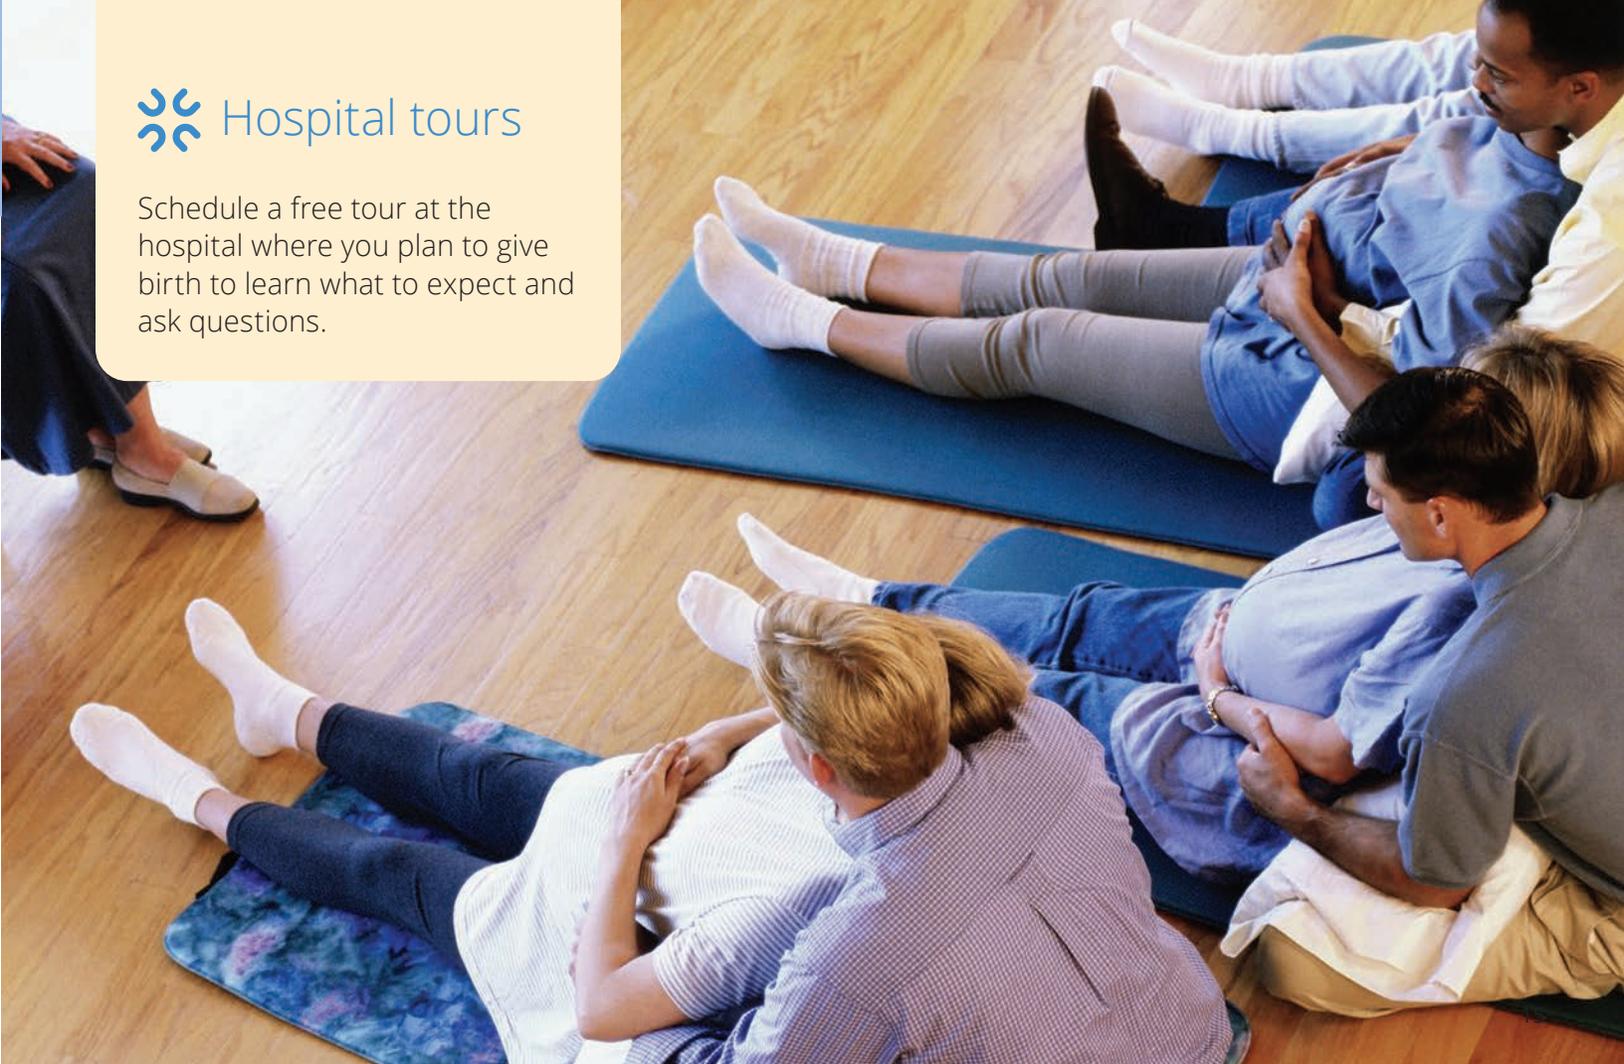

- Check with your clinic and hospital to see if they have doulas on staff
- If they do not, call Customer Service at the phone number on the back of your UCare ID card

Childbirth and breastfeeding classes

- Childbirth Preparation — learn what to expect and ways to cope during labor and delivery
- Breastfeeding — learn important information and tips to help you successfully breastfeed your baby

To find out more about where classes are offered, check with your doctor or midwife or call Customer Service at the phone number on the back of your UCare ID card. You can also ask Customer Service if the class qualifies for Health Ride.

*Doula services and childbirth classes are not covered for Individual & Family Plans and Individual & Family Plans with M Health Fairview members.

Hospital tours

Schedule a free tour at the hospital where you plan to give birth to learn what to expect and ask questions.

Your baby will need a doctor

Your baby will need frequent checkups throughout the first few years to make sure baby is growing well. Choose a primary care clinic before your baby is born so you can easily make appointments in those first few weeks.

Well baby checkups

Starting during the first month of life, your baby will go to the doctor for many checkups (also called well-baby visits, Child and Teen Checkups or C&TC). During these visits, a doctor or nurse practitioner will:

- Make sure your baby's growth and development are on track
- Check for possible problems and, if needed, treat them early
- Protect your baby with immunizations (shots) that can help avoid serious diseases

Important

Call your county office, MinnesotaCare or MNSure when you have your baby to make sure your baby has health insurance.

Don't forget to schedule YOUR postpartum checkup between 1 and 12 weeks after delivery.

Recommended checkup schedule

Every child needs to see their doctor for a Child & Teen Checkup (C&TC) visit at these ages. These visits are available at no cost to you.

Car seats make riding safer

Why do I need a car seat for my child?

Children riding in a motor vehicle are safest when riding in a car seat that is properly installed. You will need a car seat for your baby when you drive home from the hospital after your baby's birth.

How long will my child need to be in a car seat?

Minnesota law requires children riding in a motor vehicle to be in a car seat up to their eighth birthday, or until the child reaches 4 feet, 9 inches tall.

How do I know I am using the right car seat for my child?

Check the height and weight limits of your car seat to make sure they fit the height and weight of your child (information listed on the side of the car seat). If your child is taller or heavier than the limits for the car seat, it's time to change to a larger car seat.

*Not available to Individual & Family Plans and Individual & Family Plans with M Health Fairview members.

Can I use a car seat from a friend or family member?

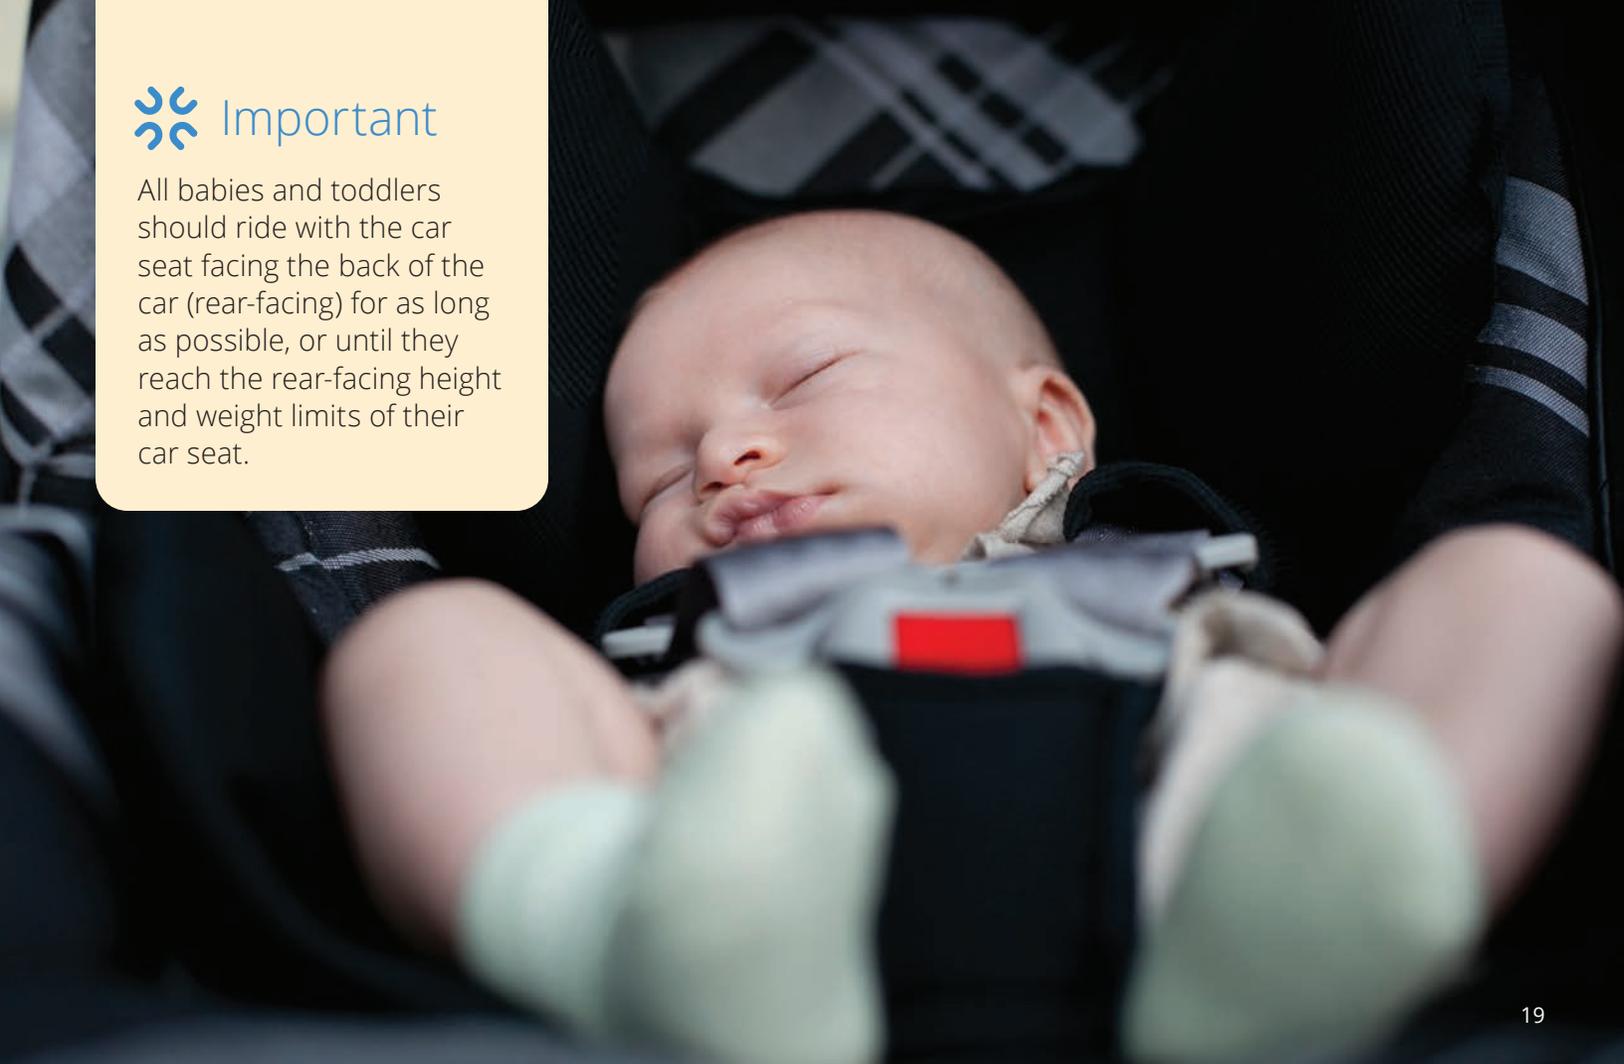

Do not use a car seat that has been involved in a crash or if you do not know the history of the car seat. It's also a good idea to search online for manufacturer recalls, in case there was a safety problem.

I have a car seat from my older child, can I use that?

If your older child's car seat has not expired (check sides for manufactured and expiration date), you should be able to use it.

Can I get a car seat from UCare?

Some UCare members may be able to get a car seat and safety education at no cost. Please call the Customer Service phone number on the back of your UCare ID card to learn more.*

A close-up photograph of a baby sleeping peacefully in a car seat. The baby's eyes are closed, and their mouth is slightly open. The car seat's harness straps are visible across the baby's chest. The background is dark and out of focus, showing the interior of the car seat.

Important

All babies and toddlers should ride with the car seat facing the back of the car (rear-facing) for as long as possible, or until they reach the rear-facing height and weight limits of their car seat.

After your baby is born

Breastfeed your baby

Why breastfeed your baby?

Breastfeeding provides the best food for your new baby.

- Your breast milk is made especially for your baby
- Breast milk is easier for infants to digest than formula
- Breast milk helps protect your new baby from infections and other illnesses or allergies

How long should you breastfeed?

- Breastfeeding for any length of time will benefit your baby
- Experts recommend breastfeeding exclusively (no other food) for the first six months and, if possible, breastfeed for at least 12 months

What if you return to work or school, or need to be away from your baby?

UCare can provide you with a breast pump at no charge. To ask for a breast pump:

- Contact UCare after your baby is born
- Get a medical order from your doctor or nurse midwife
- You can have one electric breast pump every three years

Check with your doctor or midwife, or call Customer Service at the number on the back of your UCare ID card to find out where to get a breast pump.

How soon should you start to pump breast milk?

Talk with your doctor or nurse midwife to decide the best timing for you.

What if you have trouble breastfeeding?

Some women are not able to breastfeed or have trouble getting started. If you have questions or need help, contact:

- Your doctor or nurse midwife
- The hospital where you had your baby
- WIC (Women, Infants and Children) at 1-800-WIC-4039 toll free.
TTY users call 1-800-627-3529 toll free

Ask for help at home

You'll be busy when you return home with your baby. You'll have to feed your baby often, do laundry, go grocery shopping and find time to rest. Even before your baby is born, think about who you could ask to help you.

Ways people can help you

You might want to ask family members, friends and neighbors to:

- Cook a meal
- Clean or wash clothes
- Spend a few hours with your baby so you can take a nap
- Spend time with your other children so you have some time alone with your new baby

Nurse visits

You may also get a call from a public health nurse in your area. The nurse will ask how you and your baby are doing and if you would like the nurse to visit you at home. These visits are available at no cost to you. During the visit, the nurse will:

- Give you useful information on parenting, your baby's growth and development, and health and safety issues
- Ask how you've been feeling in the days since your baby's birth
- Answer your questions and share resources that can help you and your family

Understand emotions after your baby is born

For many women, the weeks after giving birth can be filled with many different emotions, including sadness or depression. Tell your doctor right away if you think you might have postpartum anxiety or depression. You can get help and start feeling more like yourself again.

Postpartum anxiety

Many women feel worried, nervous or uneasy after having a baby. Stress, not enough support, birth complications and hormone changes can all cause you to feel more anxious.

Tips to help you feel less anxious:

- Talk with your doctor, family or friends
- Ask for help from family and friends
- Try to sleep while your baby sleeps
- Be active, such as taking walks outside with your baby
- Connect with a moms support group

Baby blues and postpartum depression

Some women have baby blues for a few days or a couple weeks after having a baby. Postpartum depression may start like the baby blues. But the symptoms are stronger and last longer. It is important to seek help for postpartum depression.

Common signs or symptoms:

- No appetite
- Worrying, sadness and/or frequent crying
- Intense irritability, anger and/or feeling very tired
- Moderate to severe mood swings and/or no joy in life
- Hard time bonding with the baby
- Thoughts of harming yourself or your baby

Important

Schedule a postpartum checkup shortly after you give birth. Your doctor or midwife will check on how you're feeling emotionally and physically, and answer any questions you have.

Help is available.

Postpartum depression can be treated — it's important to seek help and treatment right away. Call:

- Your doctor or nurse midwife
- UCare's 24/7 nurse line using the number listed on page 28 of this book and on the back of your member ID card.
- Pregnancy & Postpartum Support Minnesota at 612-787-7776, TTY 711 or visit ppsupportmn.org.
